

which trail to take. You know where the stopping places are, and the filling stations and the drinking places. And they take a lot of young boys along who have never been out--about 16, 17, 18 years old, on expeditions. And they're training them. But most of the time they leave them at headquarters. They made. When they're going to Old Mexico they probably come from the north and stop in Texas, or Arizona or New Mexico and make headquarters. Then they go to Old Mexico. And the boys supposed to take care of the headquarters camp and the stock. Rest of them go in in on foot so they get along better, hiding in the creeks and gullies and they won't be easy seen. But in the old country they ride horseback. Now, during this last camp we would say the Kiowas were camped. That's what we heard. At that camp, at the Kiowas camp, there was a young girl, the chief's daughter--a princess. Everyone admire her. But before I give you this story I want to tell you about the--we going to talk on Devil's Tower and Devil's Lake now. Now we got the background of the Indians already, came from the north and camp there. now they camped up there close to this Devil's Lake and Devil's Tower, in that region. They're over there now in camp. And some of the men went off from that headquarters to raid all over, in different directions. The whole camp was big and different parties have already gone out, except the young, the old people, and those in camp. And there was no Devil's Tower yet. It will come into the picture here and...but quite a few ways from the camp was a great lake and mountains, I guess it was. Near the mountains was a great lake. They call it Medicine Lake. That's the Devil's Lake. Later became Devil's Lake. The lake was there. now this lake supposed to be inhabited by all the gods of the world. It was a magical lake and it claimed powers. It's said the lake possesses power. The lake possesses power of heal. And mysterious girls could be bestowed on whoever comes there. The first one we'll take is the lake I guess, and then we'll take the tower next.

(Why don't we take the lake first?)
