

Uh-huh. It is, they're more Chickashas out around us than Choctaws.

Yeah uh-huh. Yeah, part of my land, down there close to Caddo, on that flatland.

Sold it, you know, such a good price, you know. Run it through.

(Were were--where was your mother and dad's land?)

My mother she filed over here about three miles east of here on this old highway.

About half way between--on this old road. When my mother died. All divided in p and all done sold off. One man owns it just now.

•IUm-hum. That's a good breeze. About nap time. You take a nap? You sleep?)

Uhohuh. I don't . Sometimes I do. When I get tired or somethin like that. I lie down and take a little nap. Hardly ever.

POP: I never do in the day time.

Course, I don't do much but I just piddlin' around little by little all the time.

Yeah.

CHOCTAW WORDS:

Yeah, I make waterhole in there for my ducks. And I got a little waterhole over there for my hogs. And keep me busy waterin' them. And make 'em waller in place.

(POP: What is ducks in Choctaw?)

Huh?

POP: What is duck in Choctaw?

Ducks?

POP: Yeah.

Okfochush.

POP: Okfochush. I know what (ujin)

(What's goat? Goat?)

Huh?

(Goat.)

Okfochush.

POP: Chikfikosoma is goat.

(Could you hear him?)

Huh-hu.

(Say it again, goat.)
