

still kinda hot he split it in half and put one in the front wound and put one in the back wound and tie it up. Told them to lay him down and let him sleep while. So, when they went - and on the next stop the next morning, he went and did the same thing for 'bout six or seven days, why he went to work on him and finally this cactus sucked there - I don't know what you call it - germs or whatever it is in there, out of it and kept it clean. So, he said, "That's what the old man did doctoring me and he got me well." And he said, "I often think about it and admire that old man the way he doctored me. And of course maybe I could have died on the way."

GOES ON ANOTHER RAID AND IS BITTEN BY A RATTLESNAKE

And he said, then another time he went with another raid. This time they were walking. He was - they were walking Indian file, he went - he was behind his brother and along a little path, they were walking, something touched him in the leg.

(Which leg?)

This right leg. And he looked down and he saw this snake. And so, he could not walk. When he saw the snake, I guess it affected him and he could't walk, so they took him - there was a woman with them - and this - his brother said, " That woman is pretty good." "I'll ask her to doctor him." So he went and ask her. She told him that she would. And she took care of him and she got him well, too. He said, "Those two are the most dangerous things I got well of on the way moving around, like the way we move when on the raids." But he said, "It was this snake that almost got me." "But I don't know about that shot, but I didn't feel it." He said after he got shot in the right shoulder his head went up this way and he
