

Yes, pay for it. Yes, I paid for it.

(What did you--what did a meal cost you then?)

Twenty-five cents.

(Was it a pretty good meal?)

Oh yeah, yes suh.

(All right sir, after you worked on the railfoad, then what did you do, Mr. McIntosh?)

Den I come home den and farmed.

(Until you were married?)

Dat's right.

(Then, let's see--you married in-- you were 21--you were born in--)

--I married when I was 21. I married in March and I was 21 in February.

(let's see then--you married in--you were 21; you were born in 1878, so this was in 1899, when you married?)

That's right.

(And when did you, what did you do after that, farm?)

Farm, yes suh.

(Where were you living then?)

I was living right over here bout, bout a mile (southwest). Yes, bout-- hardly a mile.

(Nicholson: You carried the mail some then?)

Yes suh--after carrying de mail why, after I married, den I farmed. Well, I cut and hauled wood, furnished wood heah to de mission. I, I dat's what I was told doing after I married--before I was married.

(When was the mission built?)

Hummm--

(Did you work on it any, when they were building it?)

No suh. My folks did, my uncle.

(Now after you were married and you started farming--now that was west of here?)

Yes suh. I farmed some before I was married.
