

Mrs. Osborne: He said they have water in them. In the drums you know, the drums were kegs you know.

Yeah, about this high.

(Grant, would this go back to what Mom and Pop were saying the other day that the Pawnee people whenever they did anything they did it in a certain or a proper way. In other words they didn't do it just anyway, they prepared for it, the best that they could?)

8. STARTING DOCTOR DANCE SONGS

Yeah, yeah. When them two get through then they take all their drums and start the next side. Another old man gets up. When he gets up they all know their songs. And when they start that man he's got his own songs, when they start he sings, and these others all help.

Mrs. Osborne: And then where is it?

Where that comes in, that ohhhhhhh. You know they go like that. That's when they are closing, when they stop that. When they performing you know. And then again going on to this other side. Same way. They all got their own songs.

(Do they sing for themselves?)

They start the songs, these old folks they know the songs--

(And they sing for this doctor performance?)

Yeah, they sing for them. The fellow goes way on in there, they say just like they repeat. And just a little you know, little sort song you know.

And when he start there he start in. Two songs each and they sit down and this goes back and forth like that.

MORE ABOUT PROCEDURE AND ACTION

(They start on the right side, and there's two men on the right side?)

Yeah, go over there and then go on.

(They start on the right side and then they go back until each of them has performed?)
