

life. Whether it was a man or a lady I don't remember. But anyway, all I know is they went through some ceremony to bring them back to life again.

DOCTORS DIVIDE A CYCLONE

Mrs. Osborne: And even, Grant, when they be a storm coming like a cyclone, they had--maybe you know something.

Yeah, they had a (Pawnee word), they you talk to it you know. Kind of divide and go over, you know.

(Was it the doctors you mean?)

I imagine it would be. Yeah, they talk. Different clouds. They know it's going take place.

Mrs. Osborne: They would divide or go over.

Mr. Osborne: They talk to that cloud or that storm, they talk to it. And that would cause it to either go over or divide in one direction and the other half go in other direction.

Mrs. Osborne: They talked to it, talked to the clouds, you know. Just like when--Grant these storms would be having rains would come you know and thundering. Tell about that how they would make us do, Grant. You remember--I remember grandma, oh, sit still.

Ohh, yeah. (Pawnee words) the fathers talking.

Mrs. Osborne: Everybody outside (not clear) hold them together. Can't nobody go out, they listen to that you know. The father is talking and just sit still and everything was over with, you know. I remember that over here, I don't remember--I kind of think it was Phillip Young and them's mother, you know, just like we was talking about that fasting, Grant? It was just raining and still she was out there, you know.

(That was whose mother, Mom?)

Mrs. Osborne: Phillip Young, Phillip's mother and Lawrence mother--Lawrence grandma, that's the way it was. That old lady, Sun Eagle and Phillip Young
