(While the young man is asleep on the beach a large fish comes up near him and wakes him. The young man goes inside the fish, after the fish tells him that he will take him to find the light which the young man is searching for.)

He said, "Don't be afraid. You're inside me. Whatever I eat, you in the food with me. If I drink water, the water is for you. But the light, my light, the light that I'm given you--inside me. My heart, when every-time I breathe, the light comes on. The light." Every time he breathe his heart through light all around me. He said, "Don't be afraid." He sit in there for so many days and nights. "I'm still carrying you through the ocean. When I get you so far through the ocean to other end, I'm going to stop. After I stop, I'm going to open my mouth. You get up. You ain't going to be tired. You going to be rested up." So he opened his mouth and then I got up and walked out of his mouth. I was on the other earth on the other side, got up to the east side. He carry him clear across the water.
