

night. He says, "My friend, I know what you're going up here for. When you climb this mountain, don't be afraid. I'm going to protect you. On the way from the bottom to mountain, the top. Wherever you go. When you get up in the morning it's rough in places. Some places its pretty hard to get hold of this rock. Maybe you might get hold on this rock and you might slip, your hand might slip and then you going to fall. If you do fall, well, just fall. When you do fall, you falling right in my arms. I'm the one that's going to protect you from here one, clear up to the top." He was dfeaming, you know, that person whoever it is. Just told him that news, to be with it because he already started. Don't be scared to climb it. He said, "I'm going to help you on from the foot of the mountain clif to the top and then coming down I'm going to help you all the way through alright." So he went on, went on, just keep going up and up. Well, he was dream- ing, but he told him, "It's going to be daylight pretty soon." So he turn over and woke himself up. Daylight, you know, well he look at this mountain. He got up without breakfast and he started up. Kept going, kept going. Here, there, find the best way h e can. And he finally come to that point where he said it's going to be rough climbing. It's slick and no place to get hold. B^utween those cracks, where it's kind of rough looking he'd get hold of it some places. He just put his foot there, try to go, and sometimes he slip, andthen finally, like it said, when he went so far, he slipped and fell. He said, "I'm gone." But he fell right in the arms of that person that told him. He fell right in there and he caught him right in there. And after he caught him he said, "Now, you just get up and go try it again." This man, or whatever he dream told him, "You standing just like between my arms, but you still standing on flat ground." He got up and start walking up again. Kept going kept going and then finally he came up on oop. On that fourth day, you know, in the afternoon, he come to the top. He just barely crawl up there. When he crawl up there he lay there for awhile and then, went so far, the sun beagn to go down. The sun, when the sun went down, the reflection of this sun was all colors. The top of the mountain was long and nice looking--velvet color. On the side of this mountain there's a
