

long way up there.

Third Voice: I know Ball Christy. He tried to find that cannon ball.

(You said Ball Christy. Was that Ned Christy's brother?)

Third Voice: Yeah. They tried to find that cannon ball.

Yeah. My kids found it over there in that field and we had it down there for years and years. And we never thought nothin' about it. Now you know we could a had it over there in the museum, you know.

(Absolutely.)

And Joe and them hunted and they even plowed up down there. And we had a big old rose bush, and it was kinda apread out and he said the last time he saw it, it was in there right in there where that rosebush. But they plowed that up down there and they just hunted and hunted and they never did find it.

(Yeah. That's--it would've been valuable for the museum.)

Yeah. That's what Joe said. He said he sure would like to have that.

CEMETERIES

(Do you think there is any chance of restoring this old cemetery down here where Ned Christy is buried? It's a shame that all of that has deteriorated.)

I don't know. I doubt it.

Third Voice: All if it is laying flat there.

You know kids just go out there and stop. And just knock 'em over.

We got this little cemetery out here, you see there's old stones there.

We keep it fenced--we got a fence around it.

(What's the name of this cemetery?)

Oh, it just a family cemetery. There some Prichetts buried there and
