

among the Choctaws too ...

(Conjure is, I think it's just as strong now as any time I can remember.)

Yeah, with me, I think it is.

(I've run across it just recently and they were very -

END OF SIDE I
CONTINUED - PAGE I - SIDE II

(Sentence not clear) I think people did that way back. I don't remember how they made--

(Well was it candle shape?)

They have oh--well, in this case, they didn't even have candle shape, they just attach some kind of a mold looks like. (not clear) I don't remember about that. They took a piece of cloth and soaked it in a kind of grease, put it in a bowl and let it stick out. They'd let it burn out this way after a while. (next sentence not clear). And then the fireplace-- (About the next ten minutes of this tape is unintelligible)

And oh there was whole bunch of Indians down there.

(All in the Ft. Smith jail?)

Yeah.

(Federal jail.)

Yeah.

WHAT HAPPENED TO CHEROKEE BILL, AN OUTLAW

And they got a chance--well, what happened was--oh, Cherokee got that gun and they--the jailer was called a "Turnkey", and he came to the door

there to Cherokee Bill, he got him over there somehow or other, and he thought he'd just stick that gun in his face and say, alright, "Hand me the key." Well, that's what he did, this guy wouldn't do it. So, old Cherokee Bill shot 'em. So, then Henry Starr, then he decided that he