

(She went to Emahaka?)

Yes.

(Wilson Kenny's mother?)

Yes.

(What--tell us about one of your trips; what you remember about going to Purcell or Keiokuk Falls or to Eufaula.)

She said that they saved money from the crops, like raising cotton, anything that was salable and they sell it and save money and when time came, they would form a caravan and come clear to Purcell.

(How many wagons would there be?)

She said five.

(And with five families?)

Yes, five wagons would make the trip.

(Neighbors, people who lived in the same neighborhood?)

Yes.

(Ask her if she remembers who these people were--the families.)

She said she was too young to remember.

(Did she remember much--how long did it take to make the trip? When would they leave and when would they take to make the trip to Purcell?)

She said that when they left home they would travel all day to get to pitch camp.

(About where, does she remember?)

She said there used to be a place where they always parked, or they would spend the night, but she doesn't recollect.

(Do you remember whether it was this side or the other side of the Canadian river?)

The other side of the Canadian.

(How did they cross the Canadian?)
