

You'll have to ask Jenny. She fixed it for her father I guess.

Yeah, I gave her some one time.

(Is there anything else with it?)

No, not that I know of. I got mine from an Arapaho, way up near Canton, Oklahoma. They got a lot of beaver up there. They kill them up there. We went up to visit and we went to try and kill one or two beavers on the Canadian River and we find where their den was. But they're fast. They went under the water in drifts. We had pitchforks to stick them with but we didn't get any. Just didn't do good. But they had previously killed two or three and he give me two of them bags. That's how come I got them.

(When was that?)

Oh, that was years ago. About, almost 30 or 40 years ago.

(Do you remember what the name of your Arapaho friend was?)

Yes.

(Who was it?)

Dave Meat.

GUY'S ACCOUNT OF WATCHING AN ARAPAHO MEDICINE MAN COMMUNICATE WITH SPIRITS

(Now, wait a minute. What was it?)

Oh, it's a long time ago. When was World War I? Well, this was in World War I. After World War I because they had a Sun Dance up there. They were calling for medicine men that understood dead spirits. They was calling some dead spirits from the war and they were asking them who's going to win the war. And they had a medicine tipi up. And those witch doctors or medicine men was in there trying to get in contact with those dead spirits-- like the witch of Endor in the Bible that we read about. That
