

(Did you have any kind of play equipment, like swings or anything of that kind?)

No.

(When you were attending school and when you were playing with the others, did you ever make those toy tipis or rag dolls?)

No. No, we never had nothing like that. Just when we were out in the camp, that's when we used to play with them. Rag dolls and little tipis.

(Were there any of the children that were unhappy when they were at school and wished they could go home?)

I don't know. Nobody ever complained about that.

(How often would you get to see your folks?)

Oh, they were right there. My father was working at the Police Force.

(What kind of work did he do?)

I don't know what they used to do but they were working for the government.

(Did he wear any kind of uniform?)

No. Just plain clothes.

(Did he have a badge or anything?)

Yeah, they all had badges--them policeman. Yeah, he was a police officer.

(Did you ever learn what his duties were--what he had to do?)

No. I didn't ask him. Whatever he was supposed to do--whatever he was told by the government, that's what he used to do.

(What kind of things did you study in school?)

Oh, they just teach us the ABC's. The alphabet.

(Did it take you very long to learn English?)

Yeah.

(When you got to be a little big older and after you had learned some English, what did they teach?)

Oh, I tell you, we had no books in there. When we were in school. I don't know--we never did--our teacher used to just write down on the board, you know--for us to watch it--whatever she wants to teach us--to learn.

(Did you all have tablets and pencils or anything to write with?)

No.
