

No.

(What did you think when they told you about it?)

(Annie doesn't answer this question)

(When they came and asked your folks, did they bring them any kind of presents or a gift?)

Oh, Indians always do that.

(What kind of things would they give or bring?)

Anything they want to give.

(After you married him, did you or did he come and live where you were living or did you move away and live on his land--how did that work?)

We lived right here at my uncle's place for a while. And then we went to his place and that's where we lived all the time then. We built a home there.

(This uncle's place--was that your mother's brother?)

That was her cousin.

(Did your husband farm or raise cattle or do any kind of work?)

Anything what he could do. Farming, and then he had horses and cattle to raise.

(Did you ever work any more yourself?)

No. I didn't work. I went on my own living then. We build a home.

(Is that home you built still standing?)

It's still standing, but it's been sold--to white people.

VISITS TO WYOMING ARAPAHOES

(Back when you were little--like the days when you were still going to school--did the Arapahoes here in Oklahoma ever used to go visit the Arapahoes that were living in Wyoming?)

Oh, they been visiting one another, back and forth, all the way through that I know of. Yeah.

(Did your family ever go?)

Yeah. I had uncles. They used to come and stay with us every winter. They'd go back in the spring time.

(Did they go on the train, or how--?)

They used to come on the train, and go back on the train.

(Did you ever go to Wyoming when you were little?)

Not when I was little.
