

the time. He was just about dead, call for fish. He wanted papa to get him a mess of fish. He knew papa was a good gigger. Papa use these spears, they called them gigs in them days and papa in the month of November, it use to get cold in those days, back then. It got cold in the winter and there was ice on the creek. Well papa went to visit this old man and give him some fish and he fell in. The ice wasn't as thick as the thought it was and he fell into the water. He had mess all ready but he thought he could get a few more you know and he got himself wet and he left his clothes on and he crawled on his old horse and he went to take these fish to this old man. And he just froze all the way there and froze all the way back. He took the fish to this old man and got somebody to prepare them for him. Then he came home and changed his clothes and then he got sick and died.

(What was your father's name?)

Tom Chuculate.

(And your mother's maiden name, what was it?)

Rebecca Catcher

(Rebecca Catcher?)

Yes. You know, I believe they preached more Hell and where you will end up if you don't do God's Will. Them days, the best I can remember, it just used to scare me to death. And you know, nowadays, they don't preach about Hell as strong as they used to. These younger generations, people don't know what Hell means. They think it is just a place that the dead goes to---
