

They put on performance, and he was there. And we'd go down and watch them, then we'd go on different places. We were there three weeks. We just took in everything. And so one night--they had the Indians go out and they had a stagecoach, and they'd go around, you know how they did. So, this night he said, "Now I want some of you girls to ride in this stagecoach." So, I was one of them. There was about six of us got in that stagecoach--and these Indians were right behind us. And honestly they made you so scared, I was easily scared anyway. And he had a wheel come off that stagecoach. That was all planned. Now he had all that planned. And we got out of that stagecoach, run across there. We were all scared. Oh, he did just the most ridiculous things.

EARLY DAY PLEASURES

But he just loved to have fun. And in the winter we used to go jackrabbit hunting. Ride across the prairie, you know--dogs, you know--be cold as could be. But we didn't mind that a bit. Tearing across the country, hunting--

(Well that was really a thrill then wasn't it--get on those horses and chase those jackrabbits.)

Yes, and we had dogs--there were some scared girls when that wheel came off that stagecoach, just screaming, you know. Course the people, they liked it. I guess they thought it was part of the show, but we sure didn't know what was going to happen. (Sentence not clear). And my mother was a widow lady, and so was Mrs. Porter, and they always went with us and they just enjoyed it as much as
