

(Uh-huh. What's the Cheyenne word for God? Do they have a word for God?)

Mi-hi-yah.

(Mi-he-yah.)

Mi-he-yah. Yeah.

(That's just God.)

Yeah.

(Uh-huh.)

Yeah. And that's what saves lot of Indians. I think in 19--, I think it's 1918. When they bring that German flu.

(Uh-huh.)

You see, we didn't know, nobody knew how to combat that flu. We didn't know medicine at that time, that could cure. My, we lost lot of Indians then. Some just died and passed out. That flu, you know. That German flu. And that's the only thing that saved our Indians.

(Uh-huh.)

They didn't know what the German flu was. Yeah, lot of people died. They didn't know how. Now they got ways to handle that thing.

(Uh-huh.)

Flu. In them days they didn't. Nobody didn't know. We had lot of Indians die. And that's what saved them. That peyote here in bottom

(I think state of Oklahoma is trying to stop peyote?)

Yeah. That's what I mean. See. They ought to let us half way, half way.

They don't kick us around now. They don't give us little chance to get up little.

(Uh-huh.)

They pin us down to the ground. (laughter)
