

rented to school teacher that taught out at the Indian Camp school, you know. And his name was Bafatin, I believe, Mr. Bafatin - I believe that was his name. I always hated it after that but Hill wanted to go to the farm so he could farm, you know, and nothing to do at the camp. And that's how we moved out there. The school teacher was living there when it caught on fire. It caught on in the flue somehow. There used to be a lot of Indians live out there. (You know there's a lot of foundations out there - around there.)

Uh-huh. Yeah. My home was right there, place right there where Uncle Wakin and Aunt Millie built their home, you know. Was just right - not far from it. Was just over on west side is where I used to live. I guess Maggie owns that now.

(Paul does. Paul Stabler owns it. About when did they stop these Indian weddings?)

I'm trying to think. (static interference) That's Aunt Lillie's daughter, I think.

(She was the last one?)

I think that's what she said.

(Was that May Best?)

Uh-huh. She was married to the McKinley boy. I think he is dead now, too.

Let's see - I don't know what his name was. I knew it was McKinley but -

(Was it that Henry?)

See, he was John McKinley's son and Maudie Blackbird's. That was who he was. He was Aunt Mollie's great nephew.

(Oh.)

Uh-huh. 'Course he's dead too now, you know. But there's one, Bill McKinley. But that's John and Ida - used to be Ida Michelle, Ida Iron, you know. That their boy. He live in Tulsa. He is the only one that's livin' now, I guess,
