bucket and leave the tipi.

Glen says: "We gonna start this gong where we left off. Meantime breakfast is getting ready and when it gets here we'll close up."

Someone says: "Yeah, breakfast is ready."

Glen says: "We'll finish this full round before we quit."

I come back in and go clockwise to my seat. I give Eugene his Pendleton blanket as I pass him.

Glen says: "Chris, here you are." He must be giving Chris the staff and gourd, etc, as it is Chris's turn to sing. Bobby had sung just before the water was brought in. Glen drums for Chris.

Chris says: "I'm 'bout out of songs."

Glen says: "Make new ones." There's sound of a lot of moving around and then Chris finally starts singing. He sings four songs.

Then John Pedro sings. Someone is talking in the background.

Then Eugene Blackbear sings. Someone talks in background.

When Eugene finishes there is a pause. Then Glen says: "Anybody want to smoke just to be smoking?" On the tape birds can be heard singing and twittering outside. Roosters are crowing, and etc. --morning noise in the country. "There's tobacco here and more medicine."

Verle Adonko sings. Other's sing with him. Irene or the other Caddo woman can be heard humming as he sings.

Then Harry Pratt sings. There's quite a bit of conversation after he finishes.

Then Midge sings.

When Midge finishes, Glen says: "Breakfast ready?"

Someone says: "Not yet."

"Glen says: "I'm getting hungry." Then Glen sings. Others sing with him.
When he gets through singing, he says: "Breakfast here?"

Someone says: "yeah."

Glen says; "Come on in. Let's get it over with. . Come on the other side. .
Irene. . .We'll have a cigarette here. . ."

Breakfast is brought in--four things--the bucket of water and three enamel mixing bowls of food--and lined up in front of the fire. There's water, corn, fruit, and meat.

Juanita Brown turns to me and speaks to me for the first time: "Good morning, sister."

Glen tells someone: ". . .sit by your Daddy." I think another of John's sons has come in--maybe David--and sits down by him.
