

Oh Lord yes; mam, I really do. All this was between two railroads and woods. Just a little scoop up up there by the old (not clear). There were a good many Indians in through here, you know. I tell you, lots of Indians right in through there. After so long a time they move back through this way, back in that away. It's been so long it's gettin' (not clear). I'm pretty well out of my recollection and some I didn't know about. And you say you from Wilson, Oklahoma.

(That's my home and that's where--)

I've heard--I've heard lots talk about that place. And Ardmore too. I've been through Ardmore several times. I know it's a pretty big place in there.

(My Pop's allotment see, is at Wilson. And he and mother still lived there where all of us were born, you know in the same--in the same place. Uh-huh.)

You know it's kinda hard--kinda private place--now where I was raised and born it's kinda hard to bury your love and then to go someplace else and live. At least that was the way it was with me. It uh, kinda hard now to get me out of here--I guess I could get me out.

(Well, you're at home here, aren't you?)

Yes mam. It'd be hard to get me away from here. (Unclear for the next 35 minutes. Tape not close enough to Mr. Shoals to understand what he is saying.)

(You feel pretty good?)

Oh pretty good, yes mam. I feel pretty good. Yes my health
