PEOPLE BUILD WHERE WATER IS AVAILABLE

Yeah. You know, so many people say well, "Why did they build it here?" Well, it was because of the water you see. The--this is big spring here and then there's another one over here. And Scott Smith told me one day, he said, "Now there used to be another one right down here, and which there's water runs from it all the time. I--you probably remember it and I'll bet if you clear it out it be--he said he was a big spring, but water runs from it all the time. 'Course there's no reason not to get in there and clean it out. And then all around on those rocks there is where they ground the corn meal. One day Button was over here and I said, "Button, I'd like to have one of those that they ground their corn meal in." I've got lot of the deals that they ground it with and I've a couple of the others, but they have been broken. But, he says, "You got lots of them down there." And he took me down there. Sure enough in those rocks there was a bunch of them down there.

INCIDENT OF SHOOTING A PRISONER

So it has--they was a man witnessed a shooting here when he was 7 years old. He said he--his father brought him. He said, I'll never forget it. He was just a child. He's, oh I guess, he's up his 80's or no, he's up in his 70's or 80's. Close to that anyway. Said when he was 7 years old, said his father brought him up there and said this was Indians and said they had (not clear) and said they let him go home to his home or his work or whatever he had to do to tend to his business. And said he came back with him wife and baby and camped under that tree. Said he had his coffin in the back end of his--now you probably remember it.

Mr. Ragsdale: No, I don't think I do.
