

in Colorado Springs he was announcing, they wanted to hear a song from him and he would play this song on the air and it was really something back there in those days. Lot of times you could go sight-seeing and it didn't cost you and see several of the sights and go up the mountains and picnic and really enjoy yourself. Anymore things cost, just about everything cost up there. My oldest sister she used to--seemed to enjoy taking us on these trips and she liked to take us places, it always seemed like it pleased her. One year, my dad decided he wanted to take us to Colorado Springs and my aunt Mamie Smith, she had rented a house up there and she told him to bring his family and come up and spend the summer with her. And my uncle Claud was kinda sickly, he had to stay in bed the biggest part of the time while he was up there, but he enjoyed it though, it was cool. So my dad took us up there and we spent the summer with our aunt Mamie Smith. Then, while we were there, our Uncle Charley West, why he came and one of his daughters, she came up there with him. And they stayed two or three weeks and we all had a nice time, we visited with each other and it was really nice. I never got to be around Louise very much, that was her name, Louise Shaffner, I never got to be around her very much and she died when she was quite young.

SHE TELLS ABOUT EACH MEMBER OF HER FAMILY OF CHILDREN

In the year of 1932, I met and married Harold Red Corn. I knew Harold, who he was about all my life, but I'd never met him until the year of '32. We were married in October of that year. We have four boys and a daughter. Our daughter's name is Katherine Jennie. Our sons are Clarence Randall, Charles Harold, James Lacey and Andrew Edward. We have eleven grandchildren. We have three daughter-in-laws. We live in the Indian Village in Pawhuska. Our sons and daughter all went to school at Indian Camp and made it to the High School here in Pawhuska. They attended Northern Oklahoma Junior College, Northeastern State College at Tahlequah and Q.U. at Norman, Oklahoma. I enjoyed raising my children, seeing them grow and seeing them happy. And
