

time settlers in this part of country. Johnny Master. Next, we have a lady who many of you know, most of you know. She's a member of the Cherokee Executive Committee and her voice is heard in the Council of the Cherokee people, she a very wise and level headed young woman. She is well-known with her personal work in and around this area, and it's a great pleasure to present this certificate of merit to Winona Mayes. Will Winona Mayes please come to the platform. Next it is my pleasure to present an award to a man of this administration, a man, who devotes his full-interest and many of his part time hours to helping the lot of the Cherokees to obtain better housing and preparing them for the new houses, which are now being built under government funds. I would like to present his award to Mr. Johnny Shooter. Johnny would you please come to the platform? Another person who you all know and whom I'm sure is going to be real surprised because he does his work without any hope of award, without any word of praise, he does his job and he does it extremely well. He is an expert than which there is none better in land management (not clear)--to do his work. A great many of us have learned (not clear)--more productive purposes. It gives me a great deal of pleasure to honor one of the finest men I know, Mr. Robert Durkin. Will Mr. Durkin please come to the platform. This next gentlemen, is not known to a great many of you, but he is one of the most valuable members of our Cherokee Foundation. He is the auditor of the foundation and he keeps records, pays all the fees and dues that are necessary to the state and local government and keeps account of our bills, and he is also known as Spotted Horse. The name of this award goes to Mr. Robert May of Bartlesville. Bob, Spotted Horse would you come to the platform please. Now this next gentleman has a heritage that is as as any in the Cherokee Nation. He is a grandson of the great chief Redbird Smith of the Smith family and he has been known for generations as leaders
