

(Well, they'd a lot of these people now--)

They'd wait for somebody to hand it out to 'em, they're not gonna work.

They'd rather kill or steal or do anything to get by. Now listen, (talking to her dog), you got no business in here. Go on.)

(Well it was different when you were young and when I was young.)

Yes.

(It's a whole lot different.)

(still talking to her dog) --go on, get out of here. We haven't had him very long. We had a good watch dog. I was going to tie him up. But before I got around to it, I heard a gun shot right down the road there. I wound up going down there to see about him and there he lay dead! Somebody had shot and killed him.

(Well, my goodness. Well, there are people just that way. They'll kill your watch dog.)

(Talking to dog) --now yo u gotta be good. Be good. Sit still.

LIVING ALONE OFF OF MAIN HIGHWAY IS GOOD BUT THERE ARE PROBLEMS

(Living out this way, way back this way off the main road, you find it much more enjoyable don't you--you enjoy the quiet?)

It's more comfortable and more quiet and I've had people tell me, "Why don't you clear this out?" I said, "No, that gives me good protection." Some week-ends the drunks run around these by-roads, you know and where they're driving pretty fast, you can't see where the road turns off down this way.

(That's right.)

And so I'm glad it's woody back here. Well I never was bothered with drunks anyway. Two or three of my brothers got some boys to (not clear). Now they used to come up here till I think I just kinda blowed 'em out. Well, the last time one--he used to come pretty regular and course I'd fix him a bite and he'd say "Well, I just thought I'd come see how my aunt was gettin' along."
