

Some of 'em over here are too lazy to haul off their trash. It's mostly piled right next to the road there and there's a pasture you can go through and dump it way down there, but no, it's just right here next to the road. Sometimes they grade it all down and cover it up.

(I just wonder, if they keep throwing stuff out, littering roads and highways, one of these days you won't be able to get down the road.)

Yes. I was tellin' you about them two drunk boys that used to come to see me, was beaten by a woman (laughter) here a while back. They said she would a killed 'em. Said, I don't know--something or other happened. Yeah. She cracked 'em over the head with a ball bat I believe it was. Well, they was all drinkin'. She said that they come up there just about every week-end and get to drinkin'. I think her mother-in-law was right along with 'em. Anyhow, and it was her brother and so she just got tired of it and one night, and think she called the laws after she beat 'em up. She went down to the neighbors and used the phone and called the law. So the laws come down and got 'em, took 'em off to jail and kept 'em overnight I think and the law said they wasn't gonna fool with 'em, but they's nobody gonna make any targets out of 'em--no use to pen 'em up.

(But you don't have too much disturbance out in here do you?)

No we dont. It's just like I say--some week-ends them drunks--I think it's the one that don't have any drivers license. They like to travel these by-roads I call 'em. They don't like to be caught out on the highway and these patrolmens don't watch these little rocky roads.

(No, they don't. They don't have time to come off. They are busy on the highway.)

Well, they are mostly watchin' for these speeders. When my niece and them lived out there on the highway, they lived this side of Long. You know where that ditch comes in over like that? That house sets on this side and that's
