

It's a big grain.

(And it's called hickory cane.) (Sentence not clear)

Yeah. We got few apples. They done good. They growed like everything.

(Sentence not clear)

(No, I can remember when I was a small kid, everybody had an orchard.)

I don't know anybody got even a peach orchard round here.

(No, people just quit taking of them, just growed up in brush and dried out. You know fruit trees you have to take care of them every year.)

Lot of them just quit since they got the new (not clear). They just set there till they get it.

(Back in the early days, where was the Indian Territory Court House, for this district here?)

Tahlequah. I think it was for all of eastern Oklahoma.

(They had Saline.)

Yeah, Saline, Going Snake and ---

(And then down south there was Flint?)

Yeah. They had one southwest, I don't know.

(When you were farming down here in the early days what did you raise in the way of crops?)

Well, corn, potatoes, and stuff. Some years I raised wheat and oats.

(Did you have hay meadows too?)

No, I saw some ---saw some cane and millet and stuff like that.

BALING HAY - SORGHUM MILLS

(But you put up that hay for winter stock. Well, did they use to have old sorghum mills around this country?)

Uh-huh.

(They're all gone now aren't they?)
