

(Well, they didn't have no hay balers then, did they?)

No. They used pitchfork. Everybody could work then and everybody help put up the hay.

(That's right, everybody could work then if they wanted to.)

Yeah. Everybody was expected to work in those days. Now people don't want to work.

TRADING POSTS FAR APART

(Well back in the early days where was your trading post, or town?)

Vinita.

(Vinita was the closest one?)

Yeah. And some people go to Afton but come straight across the river.

Some got to Pawhuska.

(Is it across the river from here? No, it's on this side isn't it?)

Yeah. They come to Vinita too. Take all day in wagon.

(That's an old town too, ain't it?)

Yeah. Yeah it's an old town.

PLENTY OF DIFFERENT KINDS OF FOOD AT STOMP DANCES

(Times have changed now.)

Oh yeah. Farmers used to go down there and take hogs, you know.

(Did the peoples have orchards in those days?)

Yeah, everybody have an orchard. Yeah, they had lots fruit, plums and peaches.

(Now, back in those days they use to have (not clear).)

(Two sentences are not clear.)

(Whose place down there did they use for that?)
