

that and feed the people and then I give away. I gave away some blankets, pretty blankets, in the honor of my grandson. He's over there now.

(When was this meeting that you had?)

Jenny: Oh, it's been--let's see, when was it? I think it was in November.

(When you gave away these things, was it after the prayer meeting was over?)

Jenny: Yes, after everything is over--like preaching and everything. When they close the meeting, well, they give us time to do this. Before we serve refreshment, we do this.

(Was your grandson present?)

Jenny: Yes, he was there.

(That's wonderful!)

Jenny: Now when he comes back home--we're the grandparents and we got, oh, quite a wait. (irrelevant conversation) I talk to my grandson, I say, "Now, Dale," his name is Gordon Dale, "You going where they having a battle. It's dangerous," I said. "I'm your grandma, your poor grandma gonna be in prayer because that's the way I believe that the Lord will help us. You come back home safely no matter, right now I might not get the things the way I want it to honor you when you come back home, but I'm gonna have a big prayer service and I'm gonna serve supper to the people that come. That's gonna take a lot a money but that's how much I love you. I just want to do that for you cause we all be happy when you come back." So that's my plan for the future. I hope we meet it.

(What is your grandson's name?)

Jenny: Gordon Dale Tsatoke. That's my son's son.
