

Mrs. West: Yes. Well when they built them bridges down there, well that blasted it out.

ANTIQUÉ ITEMS IN A BOX

(That box you've got those records in is an antique isn't it?)

Mrs. West: Well Lord that's--

George West: They ain't no tellin' how--

Mrs. West: They ain't no tellin' how old it is.

(No sir. It says, one dozen St. Jacobs oil. The great German remedy. Well. How old is that box Mrs. West.?).

Mrs. West: Well it's, my fathers' had it ever since I can remember and I'm 83 years old.

George West: Might be sumpin' there I don't know.

(That little wooden box says there's a--)

Mrs. West: That was my father's box, he had.

Hurt West: Look a there, there's sumpin'.

(Yes sir here's a letter with the old two cent postage stamp. Dated, May 13, 1888, no 1886. Here's a Farmer's pocket Companion Record Book put out by the John Deere Co., Moline, Illinois, for the year 1886. In addition to a record section, it also has advertisements on their new walking plows, walking cultivators and the farm implements of that day.)

Mrs. West: Taken the Ft. Smith paper. I had one of them a long time. I might have one here somewhere. And you know he never, he never quit readin' that paper, till he read everthing in it and he could tell you--

Hurt West: Look here, I want you to read that. That's Ft. Gibson (not clear
(Twenty packages of Arbuckle coffee for a dollar.)

Mrs. West: For a dollar and Arbuckle and Lionhead.

(That was the main brands of coffee then.)

Mrs. West: Of coffee, yeow.

George West: Sixteen pounds of sugar a dollar.

(Mrs. West; What were your early school facilities in this area?)
