

(Black bear, I mean.)

Jenny: White bear is ^{set}andè.

(Oh, I know that name. There's a famous chief of that name, ^{Set}andè.)

Jenny: ^Setandè.

(Well, this ^{unha}dè--how is that different from ^{set}?)

Jenny: Well, that's what I say. ^{Unha}dè is the name of all the bears together. It's a bear. But ^{set}, I don't know if it means a male bear. It's a male bear. ^{Set}, they call him, that's a male. Like we got a name for a rooster and hen. And this ^{set} is a bear. But anyway, it's a he bear.

BEGINNING OF STORY ABOUT BEAR GIRL

(That's really interesting. Well, what about the story about the Bear Girl?)

Jenny: Well, shall we tell the other story?

(Yes, that would be fine.)

Jenny: Wait now, let me see how it starts out. These were in camps too. Let's see now. Wait, I'm gonna think about it. That other time I turn around the other way. Anyway, you know I hate to speak through that thing. I sure make lot of broken English.

(Oh, your voice is beautiful on there. I wish I could just put it out of your sight but I think you sound beautiful.)

Jenny: Well, this one, they were in camp. Like I say, the Indians used to be together in a big camp, you know. That's the way it was and they were in camp. And there were two sisters. I guess the childrens, like the childrens they go out and play, like I say.

We used to do that too when I was little cause we were in wagons and couldn't run around like they do today in cars and couldn't go to town. So we just stay home and play. We do more playing. I
