

else. I'm surely gonna, you know, I'm surely gonna get you but I hope they don't ask me to go in that cave and act like a bear." Looks like they ought to tell the other kids. But maybe it just came out that way. And then they ought to not go play. They ought, her sister ought to take her into just staying, you know. But anyway they went out. The girls came after them and they begged them to go with them. So they went. This girl know that what her sister told her. When they kind of say, "Well, let her. Let Setmatan be the bear," her sister always say, "No, no. We don't want her. We don't want her." She tries to warn them. And she did warn them. She told some of the girls, "No, don't ask her to get in there and chase us like a play bear." She said, "No, don't do that. Something gonna happen." "Ah, she's just a girl. Nothing ain't gonna happen." They said that to her. So they just beg her and beg her to get in there and she's the next one to go in there and chase them. And they beg her and she just made all kinds of excuses. But still they just beg her. And she said, "All right. I'm gonna go in there," she said, "And then ya'll be ready." She said, "Because if I catch one of you, it's gonna be bad." She knows what she's talking about but these childrens didn't believe her. They think she's just scaring them before she's gonna play bear in there in the cave. And they were--there was a bunch of them. They all went and act like they were picking plums. The bear came running out and they all run. At first, you know, they all just had fun. Make lot of noise and run every way. And then she came back and went back in there second time. And then they went to pick plums, act like they picking plums. She run out and chase them and that time the hairs--the furs were coming out on her.
