

(Bonnie: Were you here then?)

Huh-uh. It just happened that we were coming from work. We stopped out there and they said to rush her to the hospital. When we got there she was already almost in a coma.

TRANSFER OF LAND TO INDIAN WOMAN'S WHITE HUSBAND & FAMILY DIFFICULTIES ENSUING:

(Bonnie: What did she get it from?)

I don't know what it was she ate. I never did find out. But I could, like I say, I could have a loan where I could have gotten me a home in Lawton, because he's working there at Fort Sill. And then my sister--I've got a sister that's married to a warrant officer. He's a white man--and she gave my sister five acres of land and that's her property up there and they were supposed to build. And we thought that she ought to have called us all in and sat us down and say, "This is your sister and we want to give her this piece of land..." and my brother was for it. Said, "Go ahead and let her have it." Well, my brother-in-law tried to go about it in another way which he shouldn't have done, and he wanted 22 acres. Mother was going to give it to them, but the office won't let her, so he wanted eleven acres. The office still wouldn't--they said that was too big a property to give. And that's where we found out that she was giving them the land. We went to the Office and my brother found out and oh, he raised Cain! He didn't like the way they were going about it. So he told them to block it right now. Don't let her have any more. And Mama got mad, and I was in Dallas then and I don't know how they worked it, but she gave them five acres. Gave her five acres. Well, my sister turned around--see this land is restricted yet. I don't have to pay income tax on it because I kept it restricted in the Office. It's in my name. Where if I wanted to, I could put it in Victor's name, but I don't think they would have been happy about it. Well, my sister turned around and she got her
