

(He had another name, Gateaton(?)--or, something like that. Well, he lived over here by Mt. Scott. It means feathered lance or something like that.)

(Cecil and Jenny talk Kiowa)

Jenny: He said he used to live back here in the mountains somewhere.

Cecil: Haisete--I don't know that name. I know the name but I don't know how to word it.

(I think that name was given to him by the--It's a Comanche word. But his Kiowa name was something else, Gateaton, or something like that. Gatea--, oh, I can't say it. It has to do with spear.)

Cecil: I think that's a Comanche given name.

Jenny: Have to be Comanche. I don't know what it means.

STORY ABOUT BLACK BEAR ESCAPING FROM SOLDIERS THROUGH A CAVE

(Well anyway, let's get back to your grandfather. Could you tell me about this time that Cecil was talking about when he went down to Mexico and got caught in that cave? And the soldiers were trying to get them out?)

Jenny: That other one was another story. And this one is--that's another story too. Several times he got in bad. Got caught and all that but he always get out of it.

(Well, you can just tell me which one you are in the mood to tell.)

Jenny: Well, like he said, it's what he told you. Do you remember what he said?

(Well, I didn't catch it on the tape. I just remember when you were talking about the soldiers pursuing them and they went into the cave to hide.)

Jenny: Oh, well this was soldiers and somehow any other tripe, I guess when there is a war going on and they are going to fight and
