

that if you are going to be the kind that signs up for membership and then forgets about it whenever we call on you, why you are not available. Then I don't think you ought to take part because this what we want -- we want individuals that are willing to work, and that's my reason for contacting you and asking you to come here tonight. Like I said, we've got all kinds of programs -- we've got all types and efforts have been made to help the individual, but not anytime have these programs come to the Indians and asked them what they want. And asked them what kind of programs will best serve in the areas that they work in. This is why I think we can be effective -- we know the area -- we've lived here. Everyone of you has lived here all your life. You've worked in the community where you've lived and you've grown up there and you know what they need. And this is one of the purposes that I feel like that we should get together and work for. Now this meeting is not designed in any way, we don't have an agenda. We'd like for anybody that wants to, to get up and if you want to say something in regards to what I said, why I'd -- just feel free to speak right up. And before we do, I'd like to introduce Mr. Bob Miller who is the Indian Education Specialist with the Human Relations Center in Extension Division of Oklahoma University, he's with us tonight. He was one of those responsible -- Bob, would you stand up please -- One of the ones responsible for formation of the former community relations group that was here before. Now this is one of the things we are going to have to discuss -- whether or not we want to call ourselves a continuation of that program or re-organize with new objectives and new purposes. And also -- probably doesn't need an introduction, but we want you to recognize him, Boyce Timmons, who is the director of the Indian program -- Indian programming -- at the Indian Education Center in the relations center of Oklahoma University and formerly the Registrar at Oklahoma University for a
