

Jenny: (speaks Kiowa) It's a ring.

(How did you say it?)

Jenny: Kówdæedl

Cecil: Kówdæedl

Jenny: Kówdæedl

Cecil: Kówdæedl. Give me a little paper. Let me just--and that pencil.

Jenny: I'm putting something in the oven now.

Cecil: (speaks Kiowa) Inside of it when they throw, that's where they shoot. Now they, sometimes they hit. It's just like a target. And when they shoot with that, there'll be boys standing on this side and on this side. Be about, maybe two here, two there and two here. Or maybe one on each side. And then over here stands a boy over here. This boy, he throws it. And it's got the wheel and this boy, he catch it. And this boy, they got arrows and bow. And when that wheel turns and roll, they shoot at it.

(Is it rolling on the ground or is it in the air?)

Cecil: No, on the ground. It's just like playing horseshoe. Just, say this is the ground and the boy stands here--here and this boy, he throws it on the side, why they shoot at it. And if one boy hits this then he win. Game wheel, I think they call it. It's a playing game with a wheel. And I think that's what they call it. And it's painted red--the wheels. This here, it's all rawhide. The wheels is made out of wood but all of this here is made out of rawhide. It's strips like this. And how they do--they put those on so it can run straight. It couldn't run this way, you know. It run straight. That's why they put them weight, I guess.

(Well, it is going, traveling on the ground? You know, going over
