

all of us." So when the night fell, well, he got down and look around and he find a place where there was a cave. There was a hole. He went in there and he found a cave. Side of a mountain, a hill, I guess. So they all got down there and then the next morning this other enemies went and found that hole--cave they got in. But they couldn't get in there because they're in there. And they going to shoot them. So they, I guess, they made a plan that day. 'Gonna just starve them out. So they stayed in there maybe two, three days. And then my grandpa said, "You boys, you just be on the watch out here. I'm going to go through that tunnel." There was--he found a tunnel that goes. He said, "I'm gonna go and if I get stuck over there somewhere or something happens, you know, that I wouldn't come back." But you stay here and you watch out. And then he went in there and followed that hole and there was place way out there--the other side of the hill. There was a place comes out. He came out. It was in the tall grass where he came out. Then he come back in. Then he came to the boys and said, "I found a place where we could get out and our enemies will think we're still in here but we're gonna get out." So they all followed him. They all crawled through that hole and they all came out the other way. Then they left from there. They went and went. And they traveled and traveled somewhere way off. There's a storm came--big snow storm, blizzard.

HOW BLACK BEAR SAVED HIS WARRIORS FROM FREEZING TO DEATH

They couldn't make it any farther, these boys, young men. So grandpa went and they came--they came through a river. The water was cold--icy. [And no wood on this side but across, when you get across there was plenty wood on that side--timber. So this young men, they
