

Jenny: Cĕ.taidw, kō cĕ.gw.

Cecil: Kō cĕ.gw, that's elk.

(Kō cĕ.gw.)

Cecil: Cĕ.taidw, for a horse.

Jenny: Kō cĕ.gw, kō cĕ.gw--I got them mixed up. Cĕ.taidw. And the other, that's not an elk. Kōgui, that's elk.

Cecil: Elk, yeah. Kōgui is an Elk Lodge.

Jenny: And what's next?

(Now, wait a minute. What is the Elk Lodge? The Elk Lodge is what?)

Jenny: Kōgui. I don't think you got it on there. Kōgui. I thought you put it on there.

(I did, earlier.)

Jenny: Kōgui. That's a Kiowa, I mean elk.

(Well, then what is this kō cĕ.gw?)

Jenny: Kō cĕ.gw, I don't know how you'd call that. Just rub that out. Kō cĕ.gw. How would you call that? That's Indian. I don't know what it means. Kō cĕ.gw.

Cecil: It's got cĕ. in there.

Jenny: It's got a kō c.

Cecil: Kō cĕ.gw.

Jenny: Kō cĕ.gw. I don't know what it meant, but cĕ. means horse.

Cecil: It's a horse clan the way I would put it. The horse clan.

Jenny: Cĕ.taidw (speaks Kiowa)--that's a name of a horse too. But it's different. Last word is different. Cĕ.taidw and kō cĕ.gw, well just put it cĕ.taidw and kō cĕ.gw--they both got horse names in there.

(What about this adltoyi.gw?)

Jenny: Aldtoyi.gw.
