

But she's not living at Norman now. She's in Oklahoma City I heard.

(Yeah, I know it.)

Cecil: And I want to get me one of them books and if you'll locate any book like this or this, well--.

(Well, I could probably get one like this. But I'll never be able to find one like that because it's just out of print.)

Cecil: Well, if you can just find one, I'll pay for it.

(I'll try to get you this one. I can probably get that. But this one--I'd buy this one from you.)

Cecil: I know where there's lots of them and she gives them away.

Over there--what's the name of that town just out of Tahlequah?

Muskogee?

Jenny: Yeah, Muskogee.

Cecil: Muskogee.

(Now Ten Grandmothers, I can get that. But this is old)

Jenny: Yeah, that's a old book.

(They probably won't reprint this.)

Cecil: I'm gonna hunt for this book here.

(The only way you could find it would be like in a second hand book shop.)

Cecil: I had six of them. But they borrowed it in Texas and never returned it. I had six books.

(That's the trouble with loaning your things out.)

(NOTE: This is the beginning of another interview. This is on September 25.)

Jenny: And this Sainday, what we talk about that rode the alligator?

(Yeah, and also the one about the prairie dogs--where he hit the prairie dogs on the head.)
