

Well, where I lived up in there?

(Yeah.)

Well, let's see now--

(That was on Clear Creek, wasn't it?)

No, it was Honey Creek.

( I mean Honey Creek.)

Yeah. Yeah, I lived about a mile, oh, not that far, I guess, almost a mile north.

I lived on Cowskin Prairie then.

(Yeah.)

On the edge of Cowskin Prairie, and it's about a mile down there to Honey Creek-- south.

(Mmhmm.)

That's where I lived then. My kids went to-- Do you remember-- I know Jim remembers talking to us that one time. Talking to old folks and colored family.

(Mmhmm.)

And ah-- But, anyhow, that's where Muskrats used to live before he raised his family. Jim Muskrat. Jim Muskrat was a cousin of mine.

(Yeah. I've heard about--a lot about Jim Muskrat.)

And Ruth used to be an Indian sometime--worked for the Indians.

(Yeah, Ruth Muskrat, I know her.)

Yeah. Maud--Maud Muskrat, Maud Sellers and Jeff Bagglely. I was born and raised just ah 'bout six--'bout five miles--'bout six miles from here, I guess.

(Mmhmm.)

I was born on Honey Creek down there and raised there. Oh I had lived there in that house where Stand Watie lived way down.

(Well. The one that Stand Watie built. Mmhmm.)

It was a double log house, huge double log house with entry in the middle, you
