

And also at these meetings was Mrs. Frank (name not clear) and Mary Lohah, her husband, Frank Lohah, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Russell, and old lady Humpatoke, Mr. and Mrs. John Abbott, and of course, my father, Mr. Robert Morrell. He was usually a chairman like of these meetings. I remember about oh, there were others there too. There was always visitors, too, always coming and going from different tribes. They like to come and visit. Communicate ideas with them. They discussed conditions of their--both Osage and other tribes. They have taken a lot of ideas from our meetings and it's turned out for them to work just as well among their tribes as well as ours. So, all these people did have a purpose in whatever they done, but they always had these entertainments to go along with it. Course that was their social life, I suppose you could call it. And that's how they would come to many decisions on different matters, always concerning the people, the tribe.

(End of Side A)