

in that bunch of bushes. So we trailed them up aways and finally shot another one crippled him. He couldn't fly very far. And when we run on to him. He took himself a little hollow. Hid under some grape vines. Well I had a twenty-two with me. I think well I'll just shot him through the head.

(Uh-hum.)

And I shot at that turkey and never did hit it though of course. I just laid my gun down and got me a rock. And I hit that turkey right on the head with the first blow, knocked him over. (Laughter) I used to be awful good with rocks. And every winter those eagles would sit on that dead tree. I saw him kill two eagles from that tree. And that was a long shot, too. He's still got that gun, too.

EARLY DAYS OF RAMONA - OIL FOUND

(Leonard how old a community is Ramona?)

Oh, it's way back.

Mrs. Payne: It's an old, old one.

(Well. About when did it start? Does anyone have any idea?)

Oh I imagine the early 1900's

(Yeah)

I guess. I don't know just when it started.

(Uh-huh)

I know in 1910, '13 along there. Before that I don't know.

Mrs. Payne: It was quite an oil town wasn't it, Bunch?

(Oil was what made it then.)

Mrs. Payne: Yeah. And there was a bank there.

(Uh-huh)

Now how old it is, now I can't remember, but it's old. Used to be pretty town years ago.
