

(They can just own so much land.)

Yeah so much.

(Uh-huh)

Land. (not clear) land.

(The white man he can own any amount of land. The Indian don't understand that part.)

No they don't understand that part right there. I don't know they do funny. They do funny.

PLANTS AND HERBS FOR FOOD AND MEDICINE

(Has the Cherokee forgotten about all the different kind of plants that grows out in the woods about what they used for and what they eat and what the medicine.)

What medicine.

(Yeah, what kind of plants to eat. Does he still remember about those things.)

You mean the wild fruit. Oh yeah they still eat that. That's what they used to eat.

(Uh-huh.)

Yeah they eat them things.

(And they gather wild plants to make medicine.)

Huh?

(Can he gather wild plants to make the medicine.)

Yeah the gather out of the ground. Root, some kind of weed you know.

(Yeah)

Root, that's what they call the herb you know. Yeah they make lots of it, lots of that. There's a root standing right there.

(Well)

Makes some the medicine best there is. Blackberry.

(Yeah)
