

That's the reason he sent it back the next day.

Lady: (Not clear)

(Uh-huh)

CONCERNING SCHOOLS

And that was a frame building. And uh-

Lady: Right up on the hill in front of where we used to--

Yeah, and then they built a stone building. It was condemned later on.

And they built another one. Two story. That school has been all right after they had to give, they gave the school up, some years back. I don't know how many years.

Lady: About ten I think.

(Presbyterian)

(Not clear) Presbyterian. (Not clear) conducted by the Women's Home Mission of the Presbyterian Church in the USA.

Lady: (Not clear)

(Uh-hum)

I've got a bunch of rent houses.

(Your great-grandmother was full blood then. She lived in Tennessee,

I imagine. Or Georgia?)

CONCERNING RELATIVES

Yeah, yeah, my great-great grandmother was in that, some of them. Back in that Trail of Tears.

(Yes)

Well they (not clear).

(Well, my goodness.)

And uh, she stayed at Dardanelle, Arkansas.

(Hum)

And she had been educated down there. See that's the first public school
