

of your original place--what land did you trade for that?)

Well, it was some other Indian's. See, my mother--my father had his old aunt and her son and two daughters to take allotments with us. They were selling their lands pretty fast so that's how we traded--instead of them selling lands why we traded for theirs.

(What did you trade for theirs?)

What do you mean?

(If you traded for land that was north of yours, what land did you give up for it?)

Well, I traded my eighty--

SIDE B

--they sent Arnold Woolworth to Carlisle instead of us. We was too young. So Arnold Woolworth was pretty close to us, and he only lived close to us. And that's where all those things got--

(Well, did they just--exchange eighty acres?)

Value, yeah. Face value. It was just the same value. Exchanged.

(Where was Arnold's allotment?)

It was way up north there. Way up in another section.

(It didn't join yours?)

No. See, there was another section in there and it was up in there--that section right here. And he sold one eighty.

(Arnold's would be up here?)

Yeah.

SOME CASES SHOWING INHERITANCE OF INDIAN LANDS

(This is Henry's and this is Jess and this is your father's and your mother's and Arnold was--?)

In the section north of this section--the west-- He sold the east eighty.
