

around and tuck in. And they wore a shirt over the top of it which came down over this skirt, and they had leggins - they had leggins and moccasins.

(How did the women wear their hair?)

They wore - the men wore their hair long and braided - most of them, and the women wore their hair long and braided, and some left it hang loose.

(Did any of those persons wear the older roach at that time?)

Yes. Yes, they wore roaches, they wore their hair roached right down the center, the men did, the old men. And they roached it right down the center just clipped the hair all off the top, just a little bit back in the back and had a little braid hanging down their back, and then they would braid it in - the buckskin - string.

(Do you recall how, though, they made those roach? How did they cut their hair at that time?)

They just trimmed their hair straight on either side. And then they would make it roach more right down the center. And then they left a little hair back here which they braided - plaited. And the men mostly wore beaver caps. Just a round beaver cap.

FOOD - DRINKING WATER - WEATHER IN EARLY DAYS

(And back at that camp that you was talking about, what did they - what consisted of their meals back in those days? Say breakfast, lunch and...)

Well, it seem like they just had ordinary meal at that time, when I knew them there. Just cooked their - well, they usually always had fry bread for breakfast, that was their main meal, fry bread or bisuits. But fry bread was what they'd cook mostly. And they'd have a big bowl of oatmeal, or then they would cook meat - what they call meat gravy. They'd take this meat and put it on a kettle and kinda brown it like, the - this beef, - then they would pour water with it, make gravy with it, and they'd sop this bread in it.
