

day, why, we all prepared and left again. Towards north, that was towards Nebraska.

(Was it on this trip that we went to Council Bluffs, and didn't my father have acquaintance there? I don't know whether he was an oil man or not-- Mr. Lees?)

Mr. Lees.

(Yeah.)

Then, we went through Council Bluffs. My husband at that time--someone that he had known--his name was Mr. Bluff.

(Mr. Lees, wasn't it?)

Mr. Lees. (laughter) That's Council Bluff. I got mistaken.

(That's right. Mr. Lees. Now, what kind of business was he in? Mr. Lees? Was he an oil man or what?)

Well, I don't know just what kind--I think he was---

(Was he a lawyer?)

He mighta been lawyer. He was in real estate business, I believe. He mighta been or some kind services.

(Him and his wife. Did they have children?)

No, just him and his wife.

CHILDREN SEE A HOUSE BUILT FOR MIDGETS

(I remember that time we was there at Council Bluffs. Didn't they live-- didn't they show us or--seem like to me that they was a small--was that a play house? They showed Leona where some midgets lived or something like that.)

I don't remember.

(You don't--they showed Leona. It was a small house, you know.)
