

Oh, yes.

(Tell us about it.)

Well, that was in Montana where LaPlunt---

(When we got to Montana, didn't we go up through that Cedar's Devil's Tower?

I remember that's on the way up there.)

Yes.

(I mean, you'll tell it. Don't just jump around. Just remember the trip as you seen it yourself. Don't let me tell you. You do it yourself.)

Well, I started to, but you got me off wrong. Montana at the LaPlunt ranch. Where we were camping there, as I remember, one morning Mr. LaPlunt brought us a dishpan full of fish. He happened to have a fish hatchery there on his place that was in Montana.

YELLOWSTONE PARK WAS VERY INTERESTING

Then, from there--from there, we went on to Yellowstone Park in Wyoming. We wondered how everything would be when we got there. We had heard about Yellowstone Park. Then, finally, we reached the place and we also--first thing we wanted to know, where we were going to stay overnight and how long. So we went to the hotel there at Yellowstone Park. There was just only one hotel there. They didn't have enough room for all of us--there was thirteen in the party. So we finally took away from there--outskirts nearby and put our camp out where people had been camping on the ground there where we stopped. It just seemed like when we all got out and look around for camping place, seem like there wasn't--everywhere we stopped, had been a fireplace. There was ashes just all over where people had camped different places. Finally, we found a spot and camped and we had to look out for the--what was so different, we couldn't find a spot hardly that didn't have a bubblin' mud hole comin' up near. It was just strange things that we saw around--surround-
