

there, they had to get money from the agency and they had to give some reason.

They had to give a health reason or they can't just go out there--I want some money to go on vacation--they went out for health reasons or what?)

Well, they went out there for health reasons, and, in other words, they went out there because it was cool.

(You mean, the agency gave 'em money to go where it was cool.)

Yes. If they wanted to take a trip--they call it trip.

(Well, I understand this first man that went out there, went out there for his health. To the hospital.)

They went out there for their health--some of 'em did.

(There was a Sanatorium out there they said they went to and the first one--I remember the first one that went there, but anyway he came back and told the people how it was out there and then they started going out there. I mean the first Osage that went out there, went out there strictly for his health and that was--and he seen how it was and a good place to go in the summer time and so he come back and told his people and they started going, in small groups at first and later on, they just get--a large number of people went out there that could get away at the time. You don't remember anything more about those summers then.)

Well, I do. We went out there, like I said, for the summer because it was cool and--

(Yeah. You said that and--you want to rest awhile?)

Look like they would furnish a car.

SOME OSAGES CONSIDER PURCHASE OF JUAMILLO PARK

(At this time we would like to continue our conversation and I would like to relate a little of the Osages history in the '20's of how they had an idea to acquire a vacation or a park out in--on the border of New Mexico and Colorado,
