

That whole bunch they all died, and was buried over there.

(Yeah)

And there used to be lots of people here. When the people died they took the MacLoughins them way up here you know.

(Yeah. McLoughlin's)

Yeah. Kinda between this first little old town. Poam (not clear).

(Uh-huh)

(Not clear)

(Well)

I don't know how many acres it was.

(Uh-huh. Now they're all gone.)

A man come out from Talequah. And he seen that land. Red gravel land. Well that's the kind that makes good apples and peaches.

(Yeah)

And he called them people. Said, "If you let me set out the trees, I'll furnish you (not clear) on this forty acres right here.

(Hum)

Well they took him up on it. (Not clear) I'll tell you.

TOWN OF AUBURN COVERED BY WATER FROM DAM

('Course Auburn is covered up with water now.)

Yeah.

(You remember that old town.)

Oh, lord, yeah.

(Yeah)

Yes, I remember it.

(It was a pretty good little town. Wasn't it?)

Uh-huh. Old Doc McGee lived up there for years and years.
