

(Eugenia replies in Kiowa, mentioning "true story". Kiowa conversation.

Mrs. McDaniels laughs.)

(What was that? What did you ask her?)

--It costs lots of money to stand too many stories,

(Mrs. McDaniels: Something about where he was in different wars, you know.

I was trying to get her to tell that--)

(Eugenia speaks Kiowa) --they make money themselves--I want have some money, too.

(Was that your father that you were talking about?)

(Mrs. McDaniels: Yeah. The same one you're writing about. Did she tell you about the sweat house and all that?)

(Eugenia is still talking in English and Kiowa and other people telling stories.)

(You know when I first came in and before I started talking to your mother, we were talking about your dad when he got sick. We didn't have the recorder on and I wondered if I could hear that again--)

(Mrs. McDaniels speaks to her mother in Kiowa, mentioning the names of Conklin, and Howard. Kiowa conversation. Then, "They cut him. Dr. Howe sewed him up.")

He sprain his ankle, too. (More Kiowa conversation.)
